

GROWTH FACTOR

Since 2002, the number of schools reporting biomedical engineering programs has almost doubled; the number of students receiving a biomedical engineering degree has more than tripled. While the percentage of women receiving a degree in biomedical engineering has decreased at the undergraduate level, it has increased at the master's and doctoral levels.

Source: ASEE data

Number of schools reporting a program in biomedical engineering

Share of male and female biomedical engineering graduates

Number of graduates

